

A CULTURAL LAYER FOR HÔTEL NELLIGAN

The Atrium Ledger

Where the architecture behaves like an archive.

THE OPPORTUNITY

Not a heritage theme. A living record.

Add a precise cultural layer to the renewed property: one that roots the guest experience in the street and district without turning hospitality into a museum treatment.

VERIFIED ANCHOR

Former William-Cormack store-warehouse,
106–112 rue Saint-Paul Ouest.

INPUTS

1852–53

Former William-Cormack store-warehouse constructed after the 1852 fire.

1866 onward

The connected buildings become associated with the Lyman pharmaceutical business.

2001–02

Historic buildings are integrated into Hôtel Nelligan.

2026

A new interior chapter led by Corner Collection and Atelier Zébulon Perron.

“The atrium does not display history. It lets each floor read through it.”

ARRIVAL

A field is visible before individual pictures resolve.

VERTICAL LEDGER

Each level offers a different reading distance and fragment.

SOURCE AT HAND

A quiet citation turns atmosphere back into a trustworthy record.

FOUR PURPOSEFUL ROLES

The city enters the building.

01

Square d'Youville

Arrival — ordinary movement at the edge of Old Montréal.

02

Rue McGill

Street corridor — movement, storefront rhythm, and depth.

03

Banque de Montréal, Place d'Armes

Civic room — monumental stone as counterpoint to intimacy.

04

Rue des Commissaires / rue de la Commune

Working edge — warehouses, rail, labour, and the port.

01 / ATRIUM LEDGER

A building that reads upward.

Reversible, fire-rated translucent planes create a vertical chronology. The image field is experienced first as light and depth, then as specific records.

Scale	Variable; measured next phase
Light	Linear graze + available daylight
Decision	Sightline, loading, attachment, life safety

02 / ROOM AS CITATION

ROOM AS CITATION

A restrained edition turns a guestroom artwork into a genuine window onto the city, with its source quietly attached.

Location	Selected room categories
Scale	Approx. 900 × 600 mm; verify
Substrate	Museum-grade archival paper
Light	2700K picture light; low UV

03 / LISTENING VAULT

LISTENING VAULT

A contemporary sound interpretation gives the working waterfront an after-hours presence without fabricating historic audio.

Location	Lovebird / lower-level study
Scale	Optional three-minute works
Substrate	Printed score + digital audio
Light	Indirect 2700K; low glare

PLAIN-LANGUAGE TRUST BOUNDARY

Nothing crosses the room without its source.

City Memory is the client-facing expression. Dataset Factory remains backstage as the evidence engine.
